Playing score

Phorisms, book I

For string trio, clarinet in Bb and piano

Signs and remarks

Strings:

(Between notes) Regular glissando

Gradually faster tremolo with glissando on top note
(Appears only in violin in VIII)

Rapid glissando following the written rhythm
(the empty noteheads indicate approximate height)

Glissando with separated bow strokes

Thrill with glissando
(Appears only in viola in II)

(Over note) Huge and rapid vibrato

Piano:

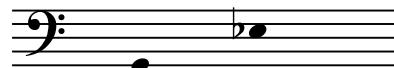

Regular pedal-mark

Pedal-decrescendo - release pedal gradually

The two following notes are to be prepared by placing small pieces of rubber between the strings, behind the hammer (towards the keyboard), making a compressed sound:

Other signs appearing in the piano part, are indicated in the score

Signs affecting all instruments:

Dashed line between instruments:
Tells where different instruments are supposed to start playing in relation to each other.

Regular fermata

Long breath / silence fermata

Notes without stem:
Short / long note of more or less free duration

General remarks:

- Accidentals apply only to the notes which they directly precede (except for repeated notes)
- Clarinet part is transposed
- The break between the movements should be regarded as small spots of silence, separating them, but also linking them together. Therefore the performer should consider having breaks in a length that is not too long, not too short, giving the music a natural flow.
- It is preferable to seat the performers in following manner:
